GOOD MEETING DELEGATE SAYS

FLEETWOOD TELLS OF NAVIGATION CONFERENCE.

HOOVER POINTS WAY

Waterways Project Given Unanimous Approval By Those Attending Recent Convention In Kansas City.

"It was the greatest convention I ever attended, and also the most significant one," said J. Ross Fleetwood, county farm agent, in speaking of the rivers and harbors meeting which he attended in Kansas City Monday and yesterday.

"It was at that meeting that I came into full relization of just what a continuous waterway from Kansas City to the sea would mean," he continued.

Mr. Fleetwood said that the most encouraging thing about the convention was the attitude of Herbert W. Hoover, Secretary of Commerce. He said that the United States government has so far recovered from the war as to have no excuse for not taking up any feasable plan for national improvement. He also intimated that the proposed plan is feasable.

"Another outstanding thing about the convention was the unanimous approval of the project. Business men all over the Mississippi Valley were represented by Chamber of Commerce presidents, while the farmers were represented by Farm Bureau Federation officials from Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska, and by Farmers Union officers from the same states."

There were about 1,500 delegates outside of Kansas City, according to Mr. Fleetwood. Charles Bellows and Uel W. Lamkin were the only other Nodaway, County men at the convention.

Secretary Hoover outlined a water program, which embraces 9,000 miles of navigable territory, north and south from Chicago to New Orleans, by way of the Mississippi and Illinois rivers, and east from Pittsburgh as far west as engineers deem the Missouri river to be navigable.

A committee of nine men from each of the following states: Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Colorado, South Dakota, and Iowa, was named to formulate an orzanization and make plans for the furtherance of outlined plans. This committee will set a membership fee and plan a drive. It will also affiliate with navigation concerns on the St. Lawrence, Ohio, and Mississippi river organizations and that of the Great Lakes.

Plans will also be put under way to get a state appropriation for the project and the matter will also be taken before Congress as all navigable streams are national property.

Dr. Jesse Miller Is Honored by Dentists

Maryville Man Is Elected Secretary-Treasurer of Northwest Missouri Association at St. Joseph.

Dr. Jesse Miller of Maryville was elected secretary-treasurer of the Northwest Missouri Dental Society at the meeting which has been in progress in St. Joseph since Monday.

The meeting will close today with golf at the Highland Club. The place of next year's meeting was not selected, but an invitation was received from Chillicothe.

Homer Ogden Elected Local DeMolay Head

Clarence Bush, Donald Herndon, and John Curfman Also Elected At Meeting Last Night.

Homer Ogden was elected master councilor of the Maryville Chapter, Order of DeMolay at a meeting held in the M. W. A. hall last night. Other elective officers were: Clarence Bush, senior councilor; Donald Herndon, junior councilor; and John Curfman, scribe and treasurer.

The dozen or so appointive officers will be named later by the new head of the local chapter.

Plans for coming events were discussed at the meeting last night. Degree work will be given in the near future and the members of the degree teams were chosen last night.

The DeMolays plan to give a dance, probably at Thanksgiving, and to have a Dutch-treat line party on November 3.

The meeting dates for the order have been set at the first and third Tuesday nights of each month.

Judge Bailey Meets Atchison Countians

Bridge On New Road Ordered Opened On County Line Will Be Discussed.

E. T. Bailey, presiding judge of the County Court, met this afternoon with members of the Atchison County Court in regard to a bridge on a new road which was ordered opened some time ago.

The meeting was held at a point about six miles west of Burlington Junction. The new road is to be a mile in length and runs north and south along the county line. Action by the Nodaway County Court was taken several months ago but no work has yet been done. It is supposed that the Atchison County court now is ready to proceed.

NEW MINISTER SPEAKS TODAY

"CAPITALIZE YOUR TIME," REV. MUSGRAVE SAYS.

ADDRESS AT S. T. C.

Comparison Made Between Thomas A. Edison And A Pauper By Christian Pastor.

"Capitalize your time," advised the Rev. R. E. Musgrave, new pastor of the Christian church, in an address to the students of the College at the assembly hour today.

"The difference between a pauper and Edison is the way in which each uses his time. You, I, the pauper and Mr. Edison each have an equal income, an income of twenty-four hours a day. It is the way that we use that time that determines what we are and what we will be in life."

The minister pointed out that everyone has 168 hours each week, and then explained how that time is used, that four hours a day, from 7 to 11 at night being left for study.

"It is the way in which we use these four hours that determines our destiny," he added.

Mr. Musgrave expressed the belief that "students were not spendthrifts of time or that they would not be here."

"No one has any more time than we have but it is the way in which we improve that time, that counts," he emphasized.

He gave an example of the way in which the courtesy of a stenographer advanced his position and the speaker said that there are many things that can be used to advantage every day.

He further showed how study had brought increased earnings to the student, that one person who studied two hours a day found that it brought him an increased earning later in life of sixteen dollars for each hour of study but brought out that "I am not talking to you about making money but about being a success in life."

"It is your business and mine to capitalize our spare time," he added, and closed with the idea that the world needs as never before men and women who do capitalize spare time."

Freighter Crew Is Rescued by Liner

All Members Taken Safely Aboard Steamer President Harding After Italian Boat Is Damaged.

New York, Oct. 21.—The twenty-seven members of the crew of the Italian freighter, Ignatio Floria, were taken safely off the stricken vessel by the liner President Harding, radio messages received by the coast guard said today. The freighter, badly damaged by the storm, was abandoned.

Negro Is Held After Attempted Assault

White Girl Reports Unsuccessful Attack And Suspect Is Arrested—Vicinity to Be Better Lighted.

Raymond Gunn, a young negro, is in the county jail today, charged with an attempted assault upon a white girl, a student, last night on West Seventh street, near the Wabash tracks.

A description furnished by the girl is said to have fitted Gunn, at least partially.

One or two other similar incidents have been reported near this location, which has not been lighted by a street light. City authorities today indicated that adequate lights would be placed in the neighborhood.

None of the attempted assaults have been successful.

HELPED BUILD OLD RAILROAD

BURLINGTON JUNCTION MAN IS COUNTY PIONEER.

CAREER LIKE FICTION

James W. Smith Is Nearly 84 Years Old—Operated Covered Wagon "Freighter" In Nebraska In 1865.

James W. Smith of Burlington Junction is said to be the first white child born in Nodaway County. Mr. Smith is now nearly 84 years old.

He was born January 9, 1842 between Guilford and Barnard, in what was then called the "narrows." His father, Samuel Smith, was one of the first settlers in this vicinity.

When he was about 4 years old, Mr. Smith moved with his parents to Andrew County, where they lived a short time. They then located about five miles east of Maryville and were there about two years, after which they moved to Iowa, where they resided for a short time. The family then moved to a farm about five miles north of Parnell. After a short time on this farm the family moved into Gentry County and then back to Nodaway County, where they located about three and a half miles northwest of Quitman.

"In those days, people were on the move considerably," Mr. Smith told a representative of the Democrat-Forum yesterday afternoon. "They roamed about a great deal like Indians, and when they found some land they liked very well, they generally 'proved up' on it."

Mr. Smith enlisted in the Confederate army when the Civil War broke out and he served about four years. During his service, he was wounded, taken prisoner and confined at Camp Chase, Ohio. He was in General Cockrell's command and participated under General Beauregard in the battle of Corinth, and fought in Georgia under General "Joe" Johnston. He was disabled and made a prisoner of war by the federals at Franklin, Tenn.

Career Like Fiction.

Mr. Smith's career reads like a page from fiction. After the war was over, he returned to his home near Quitman, and then went to Nebraska City, where he operated a covered wagon freighter to Fort Kearney and Fort Sedgwick, a distance of some four hundred miles. In those days of oxen-transportation it required about a month and a half to make this trip and Mr. Smith has had many thrilling experiences while en route to the forts.

Mr. Smith has the distinction of helping build the first railroad in Missouri. It was the old Hannibal and St. Joe road and he was living near Easton at the time. But let him tell that part of the story himself:

"It was about 1855, I think, and I wanted a job on the new road so they put me to work carrying water and whisky for the Irishmen, who were doing the digging. I don't remember how much pay I received for this work."

Irishmen Now In Politics.

"Nowadays, the Irishmen do not do the digging for they are all politicians," Mr. Smith chuckled.

In the early days of Nodaway County, several years before the dark clouds of Civil War gathered, it was not an uncommon thing to hear the Indian tom-tom and see the war dances that now can be seen only in pictures, Mr. Smith said. The red men traveled extensively over Nodaway County while en route from Kansas to Iowa and return.

Indians Near Parnell.

They camped near what is now known as Parnell, and many times Mr. Smith has seen them gather about the campfire at night and sing their weird songs or recant their tales of combats with a new civilization. But they were peaceful and no war whoops marked their presence here. They had been tamed by the onward western march of the white man and the new civilization he brought with him out into this pioneering country of the West.

Ox carts were a commonplace in those days of Nodaway County's history and Maryville was a mere village with only a rude country store and a log cabin courthouse, where the chosen few dealt out justice to the offenders.

To School in Log Cabin.

Mr. Smith first attended school in a log cabin with a dirt floor. The various "ologies" were then unknown and Webster's blueback speller and the famous McGuffey's reader made up the essential equipment in any schoolroom. A person who could read, write and "figger" was a genius back in those early days about which the "old timers" delight in telling.

Mr. Smith has lived in Burlington Junction since 1907, but has resided in that vicinity for a number of years.

He has been a Democrat since his first vote, which was for Jeff Davis for President. He has also been a Democrat-Forum subscriber almost since this newspaper was founded.

"Trafalgar Day" Is Observed in England

Commemorates Lord Nelson's Victory Over Combined French And Spanish Fleets 120 Years Ago.

London, Oct. 21. (United Press)—"Trafalgar Day," commemorating Lord Nelson's victory over the combined French and Spanish fleets 120 years ago, was observed in England today with appropriate ceremonies.

Earl Beatty, former admiral of the fleet, launched an appeal for $100,000 in subscriptions to save the battleship "Implacable," the only remaining survivor of the battle of Trafalgar.

NATION NEEDS MORE RELIGION

MUST OBSERVE LAW TOO, COOLIDGE DECLARES.

LAW CAN'T DO IT ALL

President Is Said To Clearly Replied To Critics Of Federal Dry Law Administration.

Washington, Oct. 21.—President Coolidge answered those factions of the nation's prohibitionists which are charging the administration with lax and half-hearted enforcement of the law and demanding the use of the army to suppress bootlegging.

This was the interpretation generally placed here today on the executive's speech last night before the annual council of Congregational churches.

Mr. Coolidge placed upon the churches themselves the responsibility for building up a whole-hearted sentiment in favor of law, and he advised the church people that neither the national or local governments were established to reform all public morals.

Washington, Oct. 21.—More law observance and more religion are needed in this country, President Coolidge told the annual council of Congregational churches in an address last night.

"Lawlessness is altogether too prevalent," he said "and a lack of respect for government and the conventions of enlightened society is altogether too apparent.

"If there is any general failure in the enforcement of the law it is because there have been general failures in the disposition to observe the law. I can conceive of no adequate remedy for the evils which beset society except through the influences of religion."

The President said there was no form of education, government or reward "which will not fail;" that "redemption must come through sacrifice, and sacrifice is the essence of religion." He bespoke untold benefit through a broader comprehension of this principle by the public and continued preaching of it by the clergy.

"Cannot Endure Without Faith."

"It is only through these avenues," he declared, "by a constant renewal and extension of our faith, that we can expect to enlarge and improve the moral and spiritual life of the nation. Without that faith all that we have of an enlightened civilization cannot endure."

Asserting that, if the people are the government, "it will be what they are" and "will be able to get out of the people only such virtue as religion has placed there," the President went on:

"If society resists wrong doing by punishment, as it must do unless it is willing to approve it through failure to resist it, for there is no middle ground. It may protect itself as it is justified in doing by restraining a criminal, but that in and of itself does not reform him. It is only a treatment of a symptom. It does not eradicate the disease. It does not make the community virtuous.

Law Can't Do It All.

"No amount of restraint, no amount of law can do that. If our political and social standards are the result of an enlightened conscience, then their perfection depends upon securing a more enlightened conscience.

FOX DAMAGE CASE HEARD

FORMER SKIDMORE WOMAN ASKS $2,500 OF CHARLEY LONG.

SIDE WALK SUIT NEXT

Case Brought by Cora T. Davis Against City to Be Heard Tomorrow—Railroad Wins.

Whether Mrs. Alice Fox is entitled to damages from Charley Long because of an accident on the public highway near Skidmore, in which Mrs. Fox received injuries to her shoulder, was submitted to a jury in Circuit Court today.

Mrs. Fox was thrown from her buggy last spring when her horse was frightened by an automobile in which Mr. Long was riding and which was driven by his son. Mrs. Fox charges that Long was responsible for the accident and asks $2,500 damages. Both parties to the suit at the time lived near Skidmore, but Mrs. Fox has since moved.

Testimony had not been completed late this afternoon. The jury hearing the case is composed of George Yates, Carl Birdsell, Jake Burch, D. N. Scott, T. M. Cox, Roy Birkenholz, Luther Fast, Julius Strubey, H. D. McDonald, Leroy Johnson, W. P. Huston and Ed Goodpasture.

Tomorrow the suit of Cora T. Davis against the city of Maryville will be tried. The plaintiff in this case asks $5,000, because of injuries she declares she received when she tripped over an obstruction in the sidewalk on East First street. She states that the bones of her right arm and wrist were broken, permanently injuring them, and that her right shoulder and side also were permanently injured. She declares that her injuries kept her from her work as a seamstress for eight weeks. She gives her age as 44 and her home as St. Joseph.

A verdict for the defending railroad company was returned in the suit of Shanks Brothers against the Chicago Great Western Railroad Co., in which $91 was asked because of an alleged delay in a shipment of livestock. The plaintiffs charged that negligence on the part of the railroad caused the shipment to arrive too late to take advantage of a favorable market and that there was a considerable decline in price before the cattle could be sold, the shipment meanwhile losing weight.

A change of venue was granted the defendants in the case of John Little against Charley Finnell and others, a suit for damages, and the plaintiff was given permission to sue as a poor person.

Mrs. Metly Vinzant of Pickering has begun an action against her husband, William Vinzant, to gain custody of two minor children, Sylvia Ivola, age 10, and Mildred, 13. She charges that they were being "unlawfully deprived of their liberty" by the husband, from whom she is separated but not divorced. Judge John M. Dawson ordered a habeas corpus returnable on next Monday.

The back tax suit of Mrs. Bess C. Thorp, collector, against W. L. Carpenter and others was continued for want of service in time.

A jury was waived in the suit on note of the Farmers Bank of Whitesville against John E. Potts and others, and the evidence was submited to the court, after which a judgment for the bank was rendered in the sum of $1,818.38, with interest at 8 per cent, and $181 for attorney fees.

Revolting Tribesmen Near Damascus Control

Jerusalem, Oct. 21.—Damascus was practically in the hands of the druses, according to reports received here today. The tribesmen, who have been a thorn in the side of the French in Syria and who were thought near defeat a month ago, have precipitated serious street fighting and have erected barracades to resist the French, the reports said.

Bulgarian and Greek Conflict Threatened

Athens, Oct. 21.—Serious conflict between Greece and Bulgaria was threatened today, with the Greek government taking a firm stand on the Greek-Bulgarian border trouble. Sophia's attitude is believed a little less militant. Greece dispatched a sharp note to Sophia demanding satisfaction for the alleged violation of Greek territory.

French May Offer New Debt Settlement Plan

Understood There Is Opposition to Caillaux Five Year Agreement With United States.

Paris, Oct. 21.—The French government will probably offer a new debt settlement proposal to the United States before November 1, it was announced today by the foreign office.

The tentative temporary five-year agreement made between M. Caillaux and the United States debt-funding commission is not likely to be represented to the French parliament, it is said. Caillaux, it is understood, has found that public and official opposition to the five-year settlement terms is so strong that it would be unwise to present this proposal to either the Chamber of Deputies or the Senate.

SQUARE DEAL FOR MITCHELL

SECRETARY DAVIS ASSURES COLONEL FAIR TRIAL.

CRITIC DISAPPOINTED

Expected Charge of Insubordination Instead of "Prejudicial Conduct"—Hearing Starts Oct. 28.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Col. William Mitchell was formally notified today that he must stand trial on October 28 before a military court for "conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline."

This is the final preliminary of what is expected to be one of the most sensational trials in army annals, which will have as its central character the most persistent critic of its policies in the history of the war department.

Following his decision to have Mitchell court-martialed for assailing the conduct of American military aviation of the crash of the Shenandoah, Secretary of War Davis declared today he would make every effort to secure for Mitchell an absolutely square deal. Davis told friends that his decision to send Mitchell before a court martial was the only one possible in face of the evidence presented, and in view of the well-nigh unanimous opinion of the general staff "that an example should be made" of the flying colonel.

Mitchell, himself, is disappointed. He had expected and hoped that he would be charged with insubordination, which would have afforded him an opportunity to disprove the charge and get his case before the public. His decision in this respect was realized and check-mated by his superiors, and instead of accusing him of insubordination, he is merely charged with "conduct prejudicial with good order and military discipline."

Tanker Rescues Crew off Lumber Schooner

Boat Which Comes to Aid of Comanche Saturday Night Performs Another Service to Distressed.

St. Augustine, Fla., Oct. 21.—The Texas Oil Company's tanker Reaper, which rescued passengers from the ill-fated Clyde liner, Comanche, Saturday night has performed another missionary task for distressed seamen, according to information reaching the United States wireless station here today.

The Reaper last night rescued the crew of the Rosalie Hull, Savannah lumber schooner, bound for Miami, after waves had broken her to pieces a few miles below St. Augustine.

To Settle National Guard Fight Soon

Rumbold-Raupp Controversy For Control Of Military Affairs In State Is Thought Nearer Solution.

Jefferson City, Oct. 21.—The fight between Adj.-Gen. Rumbold and Brig.-Gen. William Raupp for control of the national guard affairs in Missouri is expected to come to a head today with the issuance of an order by Rumbold taking over control of the state staff corps to himself.

Governor Baker, in the capacity of commander-in-chief of the guard, has authorized the order, it is said.

Control of the brigade staff of the national guard is not taken from Raupp by the order, and no disturbance in the state staff now serving, which was appointed by him, is anticipated.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bookman left this morning for a week's visit in Kansas City and Excelsior Springs.

PLAN OF TAX CUT REVISED

SMALL TAXPAYERS TO BENEFIT AS WELL AS LARGE.

AFRAID OF CONGRESS

Mellon Willing to Accept Rate of 1 Per Cent On Incomes Under $3,000.

Washington, Oct. 21.—In the face of vigorous Congressional opposition to any material reduction of taxes on big incomes without a corresponding reduction being applied to small incomes, the treasury has revised its recommendations to the House of ways and means committee, which is now framing the new revenue bill.

In his initial appearance before the committee Monday, Secretary Mellon made no recommendations in his prepared testimony for any cut of the present normal tax of 2 per cent on small incomes. On the contrary, he stated that this rate is sufficiently low as to not constitute any material burden on the man of small income, while the present tax on large incomes is detrimental to business.

Today, however, the committee was advised by treasury officials that a rate of 1 per cent on incomes up to $3,000 would be satisfactory for revenue purposes, providing there was a 3 per cent tax on the next $4,000 and a 5 per cent normal tax on all over $7,000.

Surtaxes would begin with 1 per cent on $13,000 and increase by single percentage until the $150,000 class is reached when the tax would be the maximum of 20 per cent.

By this recommendation, the treasury hopes to forestall the threatened move in Congress to exempt all incomes up to $5,000 from any tax whatever.

St. Louis, Oct. 21.—Predicting a cut in income taxes of 350 million dollars and the reduction of the maximum surtax rate to 15 per cent, Representative Martin Madden of Chicago, while here today declared that this reduction in the tax burden should result in lower living costs and in the development of new inquiries.

Extra Texas Session Is Still in Doubt

Some Deny Right of Speaker to Call Solons Together to Investigate Charges Against Ferguson.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 21.—Whether a special session of the Texts legislature will be called to investigate rumors of a series of alleged fraud charges in connection with Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson's administration depends today upon the return of Lee Satterwhite, speaker of the House of Representatives, from Washington.

Officials in the capital stated Satterwhite can call an extra session while other authorities deny his right to do so.

Mrs. Ferguson has steadfastly refused to call an extra session. Forty members of the House are said to have expressed themselves as opposed to the extra session and only twelve are in favor of one, members said.

The charges, none of which are formal, two cases being up before special county grand juries, declares James A. Ferguson, former governor, has been involved in highway department contract awards. Several instances allege to show that contracts did not go to the lowest bidders.

Governor Ferguson has declared that consideration in highway department bids has always been to the "best bidder," whether the lowest or highest.

Chinese Disorders May Prevent Conference

London, Oct. 21.—Civil war conditions in China make it uncertain whether the proposed Chinese customs conference can meet in Peking Monday as planned, it was stated at the foreign office today. Reports to the foreign office, which are considered as showing the serious conditions in China, were taken up by the cabinet today.

Still Unfavorable to Missouri Farm Work

Week Is Mostly Cloudy And Wet As Well As Abnormally Cool—Fourth Week Bad Weather.

In Missouri the week ending Tuesday morning, October 20th., was mostly cloudy and wet, abnormally cool, making the fourth consecutive week of unfavorable working conditions on the farm.

For most of the State farm work practically is at a standstill. About one-fourth of the wheat is sown in the western counties south of the Missouri River. Elsewhere seeding has hardly begun. A week of fair, dry weather is needed.

Except for some feeding, there has been no corn shucking or cribbing. A relatively small per cent of the corn on ground, and some in shock has been damaged. There also is a loss from hogging muddy corn fields.

Excessive rains in the southeast, from Cape Girardeau County south, have ruined the pea crop, greatly damaged cotton and corn in the lower lands. Cotton gins have shut down for the time. Apple picking made slow headway. Pastures are very good.

Robinson Is Named to Ralston's Seat

Indianapolis Lawyer Is Appointed to Succeed Democrat — Is World War Vet, 44 Years Old.

Indianapolis, Oct. 21.—Arthur R. Robinson, Indianapolis attorney, last night was appointed United States senator from Indiana to succeed the late Samuel M. Ralston.

Mr. Robinson, Republican, was named by Governor Ed Jackson to serve until the state election in November, 1926, when a senator will be elected to serve the remainder of Mr. Ralston's term, which would have expired March 3, 1929.

Mr. Robinson is 44 years old and was born in Pickerington, Fairfield County, Ohio. He has lived in Indianapolis the last twenty-one years.

Chicago University Graduate.

The new Indiana senator is a graduate of the University of Chicago and of Indiana Law School. He is a former state senator from Marion County and at one time held a recess appointment as judge of a local superior court.

He was a candidate for the Republican nomination for the senate in 1916, but was defeated by Harry S. New, now postmaster-general. Mr. Robinson was commissioned a first lieutenant in the recent war and went overseas, where he was promoted to the rank of captain. Later he was commissioned a major.

Mr. Robinson is married and has two sons and a daughter.

Pledge Support to Coolidge.

A statement issued by Robinson was concluded with the expression:

"My entire endeavor will be to conduct myself as a member of the United States senate in such manner as to reflect credit upon the state of Indiana and merit the approval of all the people. To this end, I shall faithfully support President Coolidge and his excellent administration."

Governor Jackson also alluded to the Washington administration when he announced the appointment. He said of Robinson: "He will, in all things, faithfully support the President."

The name of Arthur R. Robinson figured prominently in the gossip regarding senate possibilities following the death of Senator Ralston. In the spirited primary contest in 1916 he ran a poor third when Harry S. New defeated James E. Watson for the Republican nomination. He is a close friend of D. C. Stephenson, former klan leader, on trial on a charge of murdering an Indianapolis girl. Several days ago it was asserted in Indianapolis that if Governor Jackson should name Robinson it would be looked upon as a discharge of his obligations to Stephenson, who aided him in his primary and election races.

Burlington Railroad Makes Improvements

Freight House Gets Paint And New Roof—Freight Yards Cindered And Flood Water Checked.

Several improvements are being made this week in and around the Burlington freight house.

The freight house is being given a new coat of paint, a new roof and new guttering. Additional manholes and new tile and ditching are being installed to take care of the water which in the past has flooded the railroad's property from East Second and East Third streets. Several carloads of cinders are being unloaded in the freight yard, and the brick pavement is being raised from Depot street to the freight house.

With the improvements completed, Maryville will be provided with one of the best teaming and unloading yards on the Creston-St. Joseph division of the Burlington.

PEACE IN EUROPE.

With the will for peace that underlies the security agreements signed at Locarna fixed and permanent, the outlawry of war in Europe will be realized.

In the midst of the hostilities that ended, only so far as armed conflict was concerned, with the armistice in November, 1918, a shrewd observer warned the nations that until the nature of states was changed it were futile to talk of permanent peace. The old order prevailed when the guns were silenced and it was confirmed in large measure by those who dictated the peace terms. To post-war disappointments and hardships suffered by the victors as well as by the vanquished is to be attributed the essential change that has made possible the most important diplomatic achievements of all times.

True, complete faith in the pledged word of governments is lacking. This accounts for the British-Italian guarantee of the Franco-German Rhineland pact, by which the guarantors pledge themselves to take up arms against either France or Germany should either become the aggressor. But the fact that these latter nations have found a basis of agreement for their mutual safety is indicative of the change in the nature of states that has taken place in the last seven years.

There are solid reasons for believing that France and Germany in future will abide by the decisions of arbitral tribunals to which they have agreed to submit any differences arising between them. Incidentally, arbitration treaties between Germany and Belgium, Germany and Poland, Germany and Czecho-Slovakia, are drafted, or in course of drafting under favorable conditions. Germany is slated for admittance to the League of Nations within a few months, and will have a permanent seat in the League Council. The example given by the major Powers of the Continent is expected to be emulated by the lesser nations that have kept alive war-breeding differences among themselves.

This settling of disputes and removal of grounds of fears will afford Europe a season of peace in which its energies may be turned to the important business of economic rehabilitation. Devoting itself to this and becoming reconciled to the duty of paying for the great war, the will for peace may be developed to the point that thoughts of war will not again enter the minds of either statesmen or people. It is hoped this will be the lasting fruit of the Locarno conference.

In Germany, they are using coal as a substitute for jet. But, who wants a substitute for jet? We want one for coal.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath (W. J. Watt and Co.)

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

JOHN W. BROOKE, hardware magnate and widower, contracts to have an efficiency engineer take charge of his household for a period of two months that he will be out of the city. He fails to inform his three children, Constance, William and Alice, about his plans.

H. HEDGE, assigned to the job, breaks the news to the astonished "children." Later the proxy, under which he is operating is also read to the servants. Hedge has taken over Mr. Brooke's private suite. He has now governed the household about 15 hours, including time taken out for sleep.

The "children" and Hedge are together for the second time at the breakfast table.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Hedge was looking at something that Horace, the butler, had placed before him.

"Come here, Horace," he commanded sharply.

"Does it take four persons to send Alice to school?"

Horace returned, walking circumspectly and scientifically.

"What are those things?" demanded H. Hedge.

"Strawberries, sir."

"Strawberries!"

"They're great," volunteered Billy. "Try 'em."

The efficiency man ignored the invitation.

"What month is this, Horace?" he asked sternly.

"December, sir."

"You buy strawberries in December?"

"Often; yes, sir."

"Is that true, Miss Brooke?"

"Certainly," she replied, somewhat sharply. "Why not?"

"How much did these strawberries cost?"

"I think they're a dollar and a half a box, now, sir," ventured Horace.

"Well, by the great god of extravagance!" exclaimed H. Hedge, pushing back his chair and staring once again at the Lucullian dish. "How many boxes?"

"There were three delivered, sir."

"Four dollars and a half for strawberries—in December! Why, that's enough money to buy breakfast in this household for a week! Listen, Horace."

"Yes, sir."

"No more strawberries!"

Horace looked doubtfully at his mistress. She was flushing, angrily now, where a few minutes before it had been a token of confusion.

"We are permitted," she said coldly, "to eat what food we prefer. If you do not like strawberries, Mr. Hedge, you need not eat them. Horace, you may bring an orange for Mr. Hedge."

The efficiency man held up his hand for silence.

"Hereafter you will eat what food I order," he said distinctly. "This —" and he pointed at his dish of strawberries— "is the most wanton waste that I have yet witnessed. I sincerely trust it is not typical."

"Oh, but it is," remarked Billy cheerfully.

"So much the worse, then. No more strawberries will be purchased for this house until strawberries are in season. Strawberries—in December!"

Constance's eyes were snapping. "We will have them whenever we want them," she declared vehemently.

"Not on the house," said H. Hedge. "Not on your father's bank account. You may have oranges, apples, or prunes until further orders."

"Prunes!" shrieked Alice.

"Prunes," he reiterated. "California prunes.'

"I never eat prunes."

"Begin then. They are excellent, healthful and economical."

"I won't."

"Very well. Apples or oranges; then. Both are nutritious. But I want you to remember that the time when this household helps to support a high-priced hot-house has expired."

The three Brookes exchanged glances.

"Horace," said Constance, "you will order and serve strawberries tomorrow morning."

"Horace," said the efficiency man, in equally calm tones, "if you order and serve strawberries tomorrow morning you will pay for them out of your own pocket, after which you will be fired."

Horace looked appealingly at his mistress. She bit her lip, but made no further remark.

So ended the fixed rule for a gay breakfast. H. Hedge had irrevocably smashed it. The three Brookes gave him a silence for the remainder of the meal. It was poor revenge, perhaps, but they were in no mood for speech. It cheered them none to observe that the efficiency man ate the strawberries.

Out in the hall an immaculately garbed maid, Matilda, stood holding Alice's hat and coat and a bundle of school-books.

"Hurry, now, Alice; you're late again," chided Constance. "The car has been waiting ten minutes."

Alice flung herself carelessly into a garment of fur, jammed a rakish little hat over her ruddy hair, seized her books and raced toward the door. It was swung open for her by Horace, the butler. Down the front steps of the Brooke mansion she leaped, three at a time, crossed the pavement in two bounds, and plunged through the open doorway of a massive limousine. A footman closed the door after her, then swung himself into the seat beside the chauffeur. A second later the fifteen thousand dollar English motor car was rolling impressively up the avenue.

Hedge had followed as far as the front door and saw it all. He watched until the car disappeared around a corner, then returned to where Constance and Billy were still standing.

"Does it take four persons to send Alice to school?" he inquired briskly.

"Sometimes six or seven," remarked Billy carelessly. "Any objection?"

Hedge ignored the poorly disguised contempt of the inquiry with which Billy tipped his answer.

"Now I desire to see you and your sister in the library," he said, and led the way.

Constance whispered to her brother, motioned him to follow the efficiency man, and then hurried upstairs to the telephone in her boudior.

Mr. Hedge displayed a surprising amount of patience when, after ten minutes, Constance had not made her appearance in the library. If he felt any annoyance he concealed it. He devoted the interval to the work of examining a pile of papers on the centertable. Billy Brooke settled back in a great leather chair and was smoking a pipe. There was a glimmer of amusement in his eyes.

Presently Hedge looked across at him.

"Perhaps your sister has forgotten I wish to see her," he remarked.

"Oh, I guess not," yawned Billy. "She'll come when she gets ready. And then you'll get yours."

Constance arrived soon and her brother glanced up expectantly. He was not heartened by the look that he found in her eyes. They were bright, but troubled. Her cheeks were far redder than they had been fifteen minutes earlier. She spread her hands in a helpless gesture and nooded her head slowly.

"It's true, Billy," she half whispered.

"No!"

"Yes, Billy; true."

"You're sure, Connie? No way out?"

The unmistakable anxiety in Billy's voice attracted the attention of Hedge, who studied the brother and sister with plain interest. They seemed for the moment to be oblivious of his presence.

"No way in sight."

"Who did you phone to?"

"The Efficiency Company, first," said Constance. "They confirmed it. Then to father's office. They said he had gone away and didn't know where, or if they do know they won't tell, which is just as bad."

"Try the lawyers?"

Constance nooded. "They know that a man was to be sent here," she said wearily, "and say that father ordered it. And they said they would only communicate with him in a matter of life or death. Those are his orders, too."

Billy Brooke groaned.

"But Connie—what the blazes are we going to do?"

At this point the efficiency man made entrance into the conversation.

"You'll do as your father wishes, of course," he said. "It's the only thing you can do. It's the only sensible thing to do. These are his orders, that's all. Thank you, Miss Brooke, for having satisfied yourself and your brother that I am possessed of full authority. Now, we'll talk business."

Billy looked doubtfully to his sister. She met the situation by sitting down and waiting for Hedge to begin.

"And speaking of business," observed Hedge, turning a steady gaze upon Billy, "what's yours?"

"Mine?"

"Certainly. When do you go to work, and where?"

"I don't go," drawled Billy.

"Is it a fact that this grown man does not work?" demanded Hedge his question addressed to the girl. For the first time since his entrance into the house the efficiency man showed symptoms of emotion.

Constance was silent for an instant. In nearly all things she was a staunch companion of her brother. In this she was not. She was not proud of him as an idler.

"My brother does not work," she answered in a low voice.

"How old are you?" asked Hedge, turning again to Billy.

"Twenty-two, if that's any satisfaction to you."

Billy's attempt to display indifference was poorly executed.

"Sick?"

"Do I look it?"

He did not look sick. He was very healthy—and very uncomfortable.

GAYNOR ECHOES.

Everyone was present Monday after our few days' vacation for teachers' meeting.

A new baseball was presented each to the high school and grade school Monday morning.

A community meeting is being planned for some time in the near future.

The "B" reading class has just finished the story of "Four Great Americans," which they used as supplementary readers.

Much interest is being shown in the agriculture class in their note book work.

The quarterly examination will be given Thursday and Friday of next week, grade cards will be given out the first part of the following week. Examine the grade cards and return papers carefully.

Fifty-two were present for Sunday School last Sunday. This is an increase over our record the past Sunday. You can help raise the number by being present next Sunday.

Building For Your Future and The Future of Your Community

To keep pace with the growth of the communities we serve, millions of dollars of new capital are needed every year to expand gas and electric service.

Every wide awake business man knows that his business could not prosper if his community did not have adequate electric service for homes and industry.

The new money that is invested here each year in electric service is building for the tomorrow of this community and every citizen in it.

Rather than depend upon loans from the great money centers for necessary new capital, the United Light is building up a group of customer owners who are taking an intimate interest in the management and welfare of the company.

Our customer owners are paving the way for expansion which will maintain the high standing of our communities in the economic world.

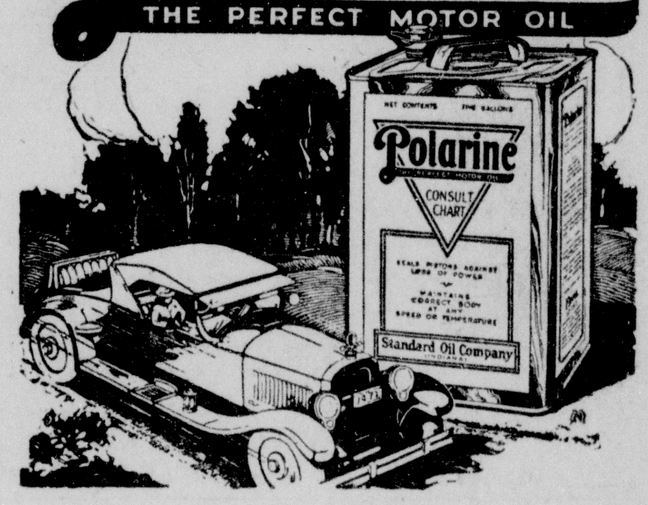
Polarine
THE PERFECT MOTOR OIL



Buy It Right

There is a growing tendency on the part of the motoring public to abandon the practice of buying lubricating oil a quart or two at a time.

This custom of a few years ago has been discarded as inconvenient and unsatisfactory — not to say extravagant.

The most economical way to buy lubricating oil is in larger quantities.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) sells Polarine —The Perfect Motor Oil—in any quantity you may desire.

Most users of Polarine are buying in half barrel and barrel quantities.

We suggest that you reflect on the convenience of having Polarine in your garage in larger quantities.

We will be glad to make deliveries at such stated intervals as you elect; in this way you will never be without oil and in a year's time you will have saved considerable money.

But, be sure you get the right oil for your car.

The old practice of ordering "oil" is like calling for a pair of shoes without stating the size needed.

They may fit; chances are they won't. Same way with oil.

Buy Polarine in the grade made to fit your car, consulting the chart at Any Standard Oil Service Station or At Any Authorized Garage for the correct grade. Recommendation is made only after exhaustive study by our lubricating staff of trained and able men.

The correct grade of Polarine for your car will thoroughly lubricate every frictional surface and add years and miles to the life of your car.

But, drain your crankcase every 500 miles; thoroughly cleanse your motor with Polarine Flushing Oil, and refill with Polarine in the correct grade.

This practice saves your car and your money.

"Lone Wolf" Trapped at Last but Daughter Still Bucks the World---For "Dad"

The world may call him "WOLF"——— "but I shall always call him DAD-and love him!"

The father, JOHN WORTHINGTON, arriving at prison — The lawyer ROBERT L.COHAN — The daughter, ALICE WORTHINGTON

Chicago, Oct. 20.—"The world," said Alice Worthington, "may call him 'Wolf'—

"But I shall always call him Dad—and love him!"

And written on her face were all the inarticulate sorrows that follow for womanhood, in the wake of human misdeeds, human selfishness.

In her face was mirrored poignantly the lesson that with a single pound of flesh the law seldom is satisfied.

No wrong has been committed by the 22-year-old girl. She is the victim, unable to strike back, upon whom blind justice inflicts its indirect, unmerited vengeance.

She's Daughter of "The Wolf"— so the World Is Hostile.

Daughter of La Salle street's "Lone Wolf" is Alice. As such, she is bucking a hostile world—for "Dad's" sake.

"Long John" and "Lean John" are the "Lone Wolf's" other nicknames. His true name is John Worthington, and no slyer, craftier buccaneer ever plied his trade in the hectic field of frenzied finance, so Chicago police will tell you.

For years "The Wolf" was hunted far and near by the authorities. At intervals the chase would stop. Then it would be resumed again, following a new depredation. "The Wolf's" tongue was oily and his manner glib.

They say he talked "suckers" out of millions in fake stock deals.

One day he turned his hand at a game which involved misuse of the mails. That finished him. He was captured, convicted, and sentenced to federal prison.

But the wolf strain in Worthington, which so long had urged him to freedom, still would not abide a prison term.

He appealed, keeping outside a cell to the very last. When his appeal was lost in the highest court of the land he played the fox and became ill.

Stays of execution kept him on his supposed deathbed out in Los Angeles. Officers waited for his recovery to start him to a federal penitentiary. But "The Wolf" had other plans. Five months ago he disappeared across the Mexican border. "The Wolf" must have laughed heartily at his getaway. The federal authorities could do nothing to bring him back, because of treaty reservations.

Alice stayed behind. She had abandoned her career as a movie actress to manage her father's affairs.

A million and a half dollars, it was reputed, was the hoard "The Wolf" had saved.

Then the other day, inexplicably, "The Wolf" came back to Chicago to face the music. He went to the office of his lawyer, Robert L. Cohan.

"He Is Innocent, and I Shall Fight the World for Him!"

Another stay of execution was sought for Worthington. He still was dying, the courts were told. But this time, "The Wolf's" plea fell on deaf ears.

A few days later he was being helped from a train at the federal penitentiary in Atlanta.

Alice remains behind with a copy of her father's will, which he drew amid much publicity just before the prison trip's start. It disposes of a purported estate of $2,500,000, representing the spoils of a lifetime in "The Wolf's" rise from southern grocery clerk to a master's degree in crooked finance.

"The world may call him 'wolf,' but I shall always call him Dad—and love him," says Alice. "He is innocent of any crime, and I shall fight the world for him, since he no longer can fight for himself.

"I don't care what the world thinks or says about it, either!"

HARMONY
(School Notes).

On account of the meeting of the "District Teachers Association" no school was held Thursday or Friday of last week. All of our teachers were in attendance, with the possible exception of Friday when some were kept at home by the rain and muddy roads. The program was especially good, talent appearing before the teachers equal to that generally presented at a State Teachers Association.

Quite a number of the high school pupils attended the moving picture show at the college building last Saturday afternoon when "Romola" was shown. This book is a required reading in our Junior year in our English course.

Our last at home conference game of Basket Ball will be with Pickering next Friday afternoon at 3:30. The season will close October 30 with a game with Parnell at that place. The coach has not yet decided whether our team will play in the tournament at Maryville.

A full attendance at orchestra practice last Tuesday in spite of the rain and muddy roads.

Next week brings the end of the first quarter and quarterly examinations.

Practice is on in full blast on "Charley's Aunt," the play to be given in a short time. The particular comedy is probably the most popular farce ever staged before an American audience, and has had remarkably long runs wherever given.

Richard Heflin was absent from school last Wednesday on account of tonsilitis.

Tennis had the call last week even if it did rain. The new back stops of netting add much to the pleasure of the game.

A new electric iron is a recent addition to the equipment of the class in sewing.

(Personals).

Miss Hazel Cox, who teaches music and English in the schools of New Hampton, visited home folks while attending the Teachers Association. She returned to her work on the Sunday Wabash passenger.

R. V. McKee and family were in Maryville last Saturday.

Rev. R. Underwood went the last of the week to Nettleton, Mo., to assist the pastor at that place in a financial campaign for Kansas City University. He returned Monday.

Alva Pride was transacting business in Maryville last Saturday.

Elmer McKee and wife entertained at dinner, Sunday, Mrs. Underwood and children.

Dale Simmons installed a fine "Thompson" radio set last week in his farm home.

Let's all drag the roads, perhaps it won't rain again right away, and by the way, some of you folks had better get busy or you may lose your mail route, according to a recent order from the Post Office Department.

Corn husking will begin soon in this vicinity if the field hardens up slightly.

L. A. King and family were trading in Maryville last Saturday.

John Green and family are enjoying a fine new radio purchased from C. A. Shunk.

Walter McCall is visiting at the home of his brother Otis McCall this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Vilas Porter spent Sunday with friends in Stanberry.

Mrs. John Anderson visited her mother, Mrs. Wilson in Stanberry the last of the week.

Those calling at the M. S. Casteel home last Sunday were R. V. McKee and family, and the family of Ray Taylor.

(Church Notes).

There was a good attendance at Sunday School Sunday. There seems to be a growing interest, and we hope this will continue.

There was no preaching Sunday. The Pastor went to Nettleton to assist the Rev. A. Q. Gharrett in a campaign for funds for Kansas City University.

The Program Committee requests all the children of the Sunday School to be at the church at one o'clock next Saturday for rehearsal.

The ladies of the church are meeting Wednesday of this week to arrange their program for the year.

The church official board met Tuesday of this week and made plans for the conference year. A new furnace will be installed in the basement of the church, and the parsonage barn torn down and rebuilt and some other repairs on the church are contemplated. It is hoped that an addition can be built on to the west end of the church giving more room for the choir and other much needed space for our community work. Nothing would add to the utility of the church more than this addition. This church is here to serve the community and we are trying to supply its every need.

R. Underwood, Pastor.

THE KEY TO SUCCESS

Success depends primarily on a healthy liver and stomach. You can not think straight if these organs are not working properly. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is usually successful in such cases. Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practicaly all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitic. STATE LINES INACCURATE

ALL OF THEM ADMINISTER TERRITORY NOT THEIRS.

INSTRUMENTS FAULTY

Many Lawsuits As Result of Mistakes Have Reached United States Supreme Court.

"Work recently begun, to check up the conditions of monuments marking the straight line boundary between New York and Pennsylvania, and to find how far the line varies from its proper position, brings to attention only one of the scores of 'boundary skeletons' in the national closet" D. C. headquarters of the National says a bulletin from the Washington Geographic Society.

"It is probably safe to say that not one of the forty-eight states is now administering exactly the territory which supposedly belongs to it," continues the bulletin. "In some cases the differences are only matters of hundreds or thousands of acres, but in others they must be measured by hundreds of square miles. These faulty boundaries are for the most part accepted now, especially in the states longest settled; but the agreements have not all been reached quietly. There have been scores of disputes between neighboring states and territories, dozens of law suits have been brought before the Supreme Court, and, in one or two cases, bitterness has been so great that civil war has seemed on the verge of breaking out.

Difficult to Draw Straight Line.

"The chief difficulty is in drawing straight lines. Anyone can draw a straight line on a piece of paper. He can construct a reasonably straight edge flower-bed or driveway. But try to lay out a straight line some miles or hundreds of miles long on the face of the earth, over hill and dale, valley and mountain, and you are faced by a vastly more difficult problem.

"Many of the supposedly east and west lines between the colonies, later inherited as boundaries by the States, were laid out with no other instrument than the magnetic compass. The direction in which the needle pointed varied as the surveyor advanced; but in some cases no account was taken of this, and in others inaccurate corrections were applied. The lines, instead of being straight and running in a true east and west direction, were traced somewhat like rail fences between their terminal points, or struck off from the true direction at an angle and had to be brought back at intervals by offsets.

Surveyors Are Led Astray.

"Later, when better instruments, astronomical methods, and higher mathematics were used, the errors in running boundary lines were greatly reduced. An absolutely accurate line hundreds of miles long through rough country has never yet been marked out on the earth's surface, however, and probably never will be—chiefly because surveying instruments depend on plumb line or spirit level to establish perpendiculars, and these indicators vary with differences in density of the rocks from place to place. The closest approach to accuracy has been made by the 'triangulation system,' which the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey has extended over a great part of the United States. Errors still crop up, but they are almost negligible. It is this triangulation system, which has disclosed many of the rather glaring inaccuracies of the earlier boundary surveys.

"A number of boundary difficulties have arisen because of mistakes in geography. Thus, the first boundary treaty between Great Britain and the United States in 1782 provided that the northern boundary of the United States should run from the Lake of the Woods 'on a due west course to the river Mississippi'—a physical impossibility. This error had to be adjusted later, but the tiny projection of United States territory into Canada at the 95th meridian—like the sight on a rifle barrel—is a monument to the mistake.

Misplaced Lake Forms Boundary.

"Another error that led to trouble was the belief that an east-west line through the southern extremity of Lake Michigan would cut Lake Erie at, or north of the latter's western end. The extension of Indiana and Ohio several miles north of this old east-west line testifies to the correction that had to be made. The shifting of the Ohio line north, incidentally, was one of the boundary matters that came near causing civil war. Militia from both Ohio and Michigan were mobilized near the disputed territory in 1835, and bloodshed was avoided by the narrowest margin.

"One of the most peculiar State boundaries in the United States is the northern line of Delaware which is the arc of a circle nicked out the southeastern corner of Pennsylvania. Laying out the Delaware boundaries was a rather difficult problem in geometry and surveying combined. While the north line is an arc of a circle drawn from the center of the town of Newcastle with a twelve mile radius, the west line is in the main a tangent to the circle from the midpoint of a base line in the south between the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay.

Mason-Dixon Line Nearly Accurate.

"No boundary line is more famous than the 'Mason and Dixon Line,' which divides the North and the South. It is the southern boundary of Pennsylvania and the northern boundary of Maryland. It takes its name from Jeremiah Mason and Charles Dixon, two famous mathematicians sent from England to survey the boundary. The line established by Mason and Dixon is probably more nearly accurate than any of the other east-west boundaries run in the eastern United States.

"In contrast to the Mason and Dixon line is the long east-west line forming the southern boundaries of Virginia and Kentucky between the Atlantic Ocean and the Mississippi River. This line is supposed to lie along a parallel of latitude at 36 degrees 30 minutes north. The line as laid out is probably north of this parallel throughout practically its entire course. Where it cuts the Tennessee River it is about 20 miles too far north. At this point there is an offset to the south and the short stretch between the Tennessee and Mississippi rivers is approximately on the theoretically parallel. The southern boundary of Tennessee is only less inaccurate than the northern. It dodges both north and south of its supposed location along the 35th parallel.

"North Carolina is among the states suffering the greatest losses on account of boundary errors. Its diagonal boundary with South Carolina is supposed to extend to the 35th parallel before turning west. It actually makes the turn 10 miles short of the goal, then jumps 12 miles north of the parallel and continues west. The net loss of territory to the State is estimated at between 500 and 1000 square miles."

Harvey Chester White Sale Totals $2,901.50

Average of $38.27 is Paid for Boars, While Gilts Bring Average of $33.54.

A total of $2,901.50 was realized yesterday at the J. H. Harvey sale of purebred Chester White hogs, held at the Gray sale pavilion. The average price for thirty-two boars was $38.27, and fifty filts brought an average of $33.54. The average for the sale was $35.38.

These prices were considered good. There was a large crowd of breeders, and apparently they came to buy. Many were from out of the county.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Weakness in wheat affected the entire grain list and sent prices to a lower finish on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Movement of the huge quantities of Canadian grain into Duluth broke wheat and sent prices tumbling from a higher opening to a lower close. Selling was more pronounced between mid-session and the close. Following the opening bulge a watchful waiting attitude was persued up to mid-session. In the last few hours when longs tried to liquidate on news of the Canadian movement they found the market without adequate support.

Corn's weakness came in the last hours. Heaviness prevailed throughout the session. It took the breaks in wheat to weaken the stubborn undertone. May dropped into new low ground.

Oats remained unchanged on a featureless and neglected market.

Provisions weakened late when outsiders took to the selling side with packers.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pat Wright motored to St. Joseph yesterday.

Nation Needs More Religion

"If we are to preserve what we already have and provide for further reformation, as the clergy tells us, we must become partakers of the spirit of the Great Master. This way is outside the government. It is the realm of religion."

The government can and is aiding in solution of some of the present day problems, Mr. Coolidge said, believing that the law undoubtedly acts to deter wrong doing and to repress crime.

"But this," he held, "reaches its highest application only when there is a very healthy and determined public sentiment in favor of the observance of the law. The utmost ingenuity on the part of the police powers will be substantially all wasted, in an effort to enforce the law, if there does not exist a strong and vigorous determination on the part of the people to observe the law. Such a determination cannot be produced by the government. My own opinion is that it is furnished by religion."

No Specific Denomination.

The executive explained that he was not referring to religion in "any denominational or any narrow and technical sense," saying:

"While I regard the clergy as the greatest power for religious teaching that we have, I do not refer to it alone. I am conscious that the example of devoted men and women, the result of the inevitable social relations, and above all the influence of piety in the home, are all forces of enormous significance. While certain formalities of the past may have lost the hold they once had, I do not see any diminution in the steadfastness of the religious convictions of the people.

See Religion Unfaltering.

"The very fact that amid all the complexities and distractions of our present life we are still maintaining unimpaired the foundations of our institutions, constantly increasing the rectitude with which the great business affairs of our country are conducted, all the while improving our educational facilities, answering more and more generously to the calls of public and private charity, continually enlarging the field of art, giving more and more attention to the humanities, and becoming more and more responsive to spiritual things, appears to me to be incontrovertable evidence that, though it may be practiced in a somewhat different manner than formerly, the deep and abiding faith of our people in religion has not diminished but has increased."

Wireless Control Is Next Improvement

If This Is Ever Perfected, Way Will Be Open For Aviation Test Of Disputed Possibilities.

By Charles A. Stewart.

Washington—If a device is ever perfected for effective wireless control of airplanes, the way will be open for a test of many of aviation's now disputed possibilities in war.

When Admiral William S. Sims, testifying before President Coolidge's air inquiry board, remarked that "war conditions cannot be imitated satisfactorily in peace-time airplane experiments, which consequently lead to wrong conclusions," he put his finger on the real cause of the inability of army and navy men to agree on the dependability of planes, and planes alone, as weapons of national defense.

To land-and sea fighters, in disagreement in peace-time concerning the potentialities of some new piece of war machinery, the simple expedient of trying it on a target always is available. It's conclusive, too.

In the air it's different.

That a plane, opposed say to a battleship, can do all its friends claim for it nobody disputes—provided it can get near enough to the ship to drop bombs where they will do the most good.

"But," add the surface warriors, "we'd shoot down the plane if it got as near as that."

"You couldn't hit it," the aviators insist.

And as Admiral Sims says, there's no way of settling this argument without letting anti-aircraft gunners shoot real bullets at live aviators, killing them if possible.

In war-time it could be tried on enemy airmen, which would be all right, but in peace-time it won't do. A wirelessly controlled plane, however, would just fill the bill.
